Miss ALTHEA ARMSTRONG.

Thanksgiving day was duly observed in the usual way in the neighborhood. As there was no church service at Lebanon Church, not many were privileged to hear a Thanksgiving sermon, but we believe each family in the land was privileged to partake of a bountiful feast and we think this was done with thankful hearts. Owing to the telephone line being somewhat out of repair we did not catch all the news as to where Thanksgiving was spent, but will give as best we can what was told us.

Good Cheer

Rooms that are thrown together have a cheerful appearance—there's a homelike "get together" atmosphere about them.

The picture at the left shows how a bookcase colonnade can be used to good effect between two rooms. It fills the opening acceptably and provides two bookcases. The bookcase colonnade makes good use of space that would otherwise be useless.

A colonnade costs very little, if any, more than lath, plaster and a door for the same space. It's an economical way to improve the interior appearance of the home.

The design shown in this picture is only one of many. Come in and let us show you other designs equally beautiful.
